

EPISCOPAL LEADER TO JOIN CATHOLICS WITH FOLLOWERS

Said to Be Man of Great Prominence in Church, but Name Is Withheld.

GREAT NUMBER OF CONVERTS REPORTED

Announcement made yesterday by Stuart P. West, head of the Catholic Converts League, that an Episcopalian of great prominence will withdraw from the Protestant Episcopal Church to become a Roman Catholic, taking with him into the Catholic Church a large number of other Protestants, and that the person referred to is so well known that his conversion to the Catholic faith will create interest hardly less than that which attended the act of Cardinal Manning in England years ago.

Mr. West declined to reveal the name of the person, but said the public has no conception of the large number of Protestants, between 30,000 and 40,000, who are entering the Catholic Church every year. Although these converts come from all Protestant denominations, the larger number by far come from high church Episcopal ranks, Mr. West said. He more than hinted that the decision which developed a few weeks ago at the meeting of the Episcopal Board of Missions, when Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, and a number of Bishops and clergymen opposed sending delegates to the Catholic Congress, had helped swell the movement toward the Catholic Church.

"I cannot make public the names of possible converts," said Mr. West. "There are rumors that many are coming from the Church of St. Mary the Virgin and from other churches, and that this is due to the recent division in the Episcopal Church. Many of the converts are socially prominent. I have heard the name of one of the Vanderbilts mentioned."

"The influence of high church Episcopals has assisted the work of our league," said Mr. West. "The exact doctrine of the Catholic Church on the subject of purgatory has been a great weight with Episcopals who were wavering. The Rev. J. S. Huntington of the Cowley Fathers has also helped us by his statements, although perhaps he did not mean to do so. Our newspaper will issue in December a special edition of 50,000 copies containing the names of recent converts."

Mr. West said that among the leaders in the work of the Catholic Converts League are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Burrill Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. G. Stanton Floyd-Jones, Henry W. Fr. Jr., Mrs. John G. Agor and John A. Locke, who was formerly an Episcopal clergyman. The treasurer of the league is Harold B. Atkins and the secretary is Dr. F. D. New.

The opinion has long been current in Protestant circles that dissension between high church and low church parties in the Episcopal Church was likely to produce an irreconcilable schism and probably turn many high church clergymen and laymen to the Catholic Church.

Episcopal leaders in this city denied yesterday that a special meeting of the House of Bishops would be called to prevent the Episcopal Board of Missions from sending delegates to the Panama congress. Such action, they said, would only precipitate a quarrel and might result in the schism which is so possible, also, to issue a call at this time and the regular meeting of the House of Bishops is only ten months in the future.

The Rev. Dr. A. G. Cummins of Poughkeepsie, who edits a monthly magazine, says in the December issue that Dr. Manning was rejected as a delegate to the 1916 general convention because there is a growing sentiment within the Episcopal Church that Episcopalianism should not have overmuch power and prominence.

GREEK TEACHER SUES SCHOOL.

Imported to instruct, Young Woman Says She Was Libelled.

Miss Electra Zolouhou, who was brought here from Athens to direct the Greek American Institute maintained at 808 Eighth avenue, The Bronx, for the children of the Greek colony in New York, has sued the school for $10,000 damages for libel.

Charges made against Miss Zolouhou in a Greek newspaper have been repeated in the press of the institution in behalf of the school. John P. Stepland, a lawyer at 27 William street, who lives at 600 Riverside Drive, is president of the school.

The complaint in the suit says that Miss Zolouhou was long engaged as a teacher in Athens, and that she always conducted herself with honesty, modesty and dignity. She complained, however, because of the libel was suspected of inefficiency, neglect and idleness and of contemptuous conduct to parents and of placing her position in the institution in a position of inferiority.

The suit is based on a statement by B. D. Darnjontis, secretary of the administrative council of the school. The letter said that she quarrelled with the members of the council and was expelled and alienated the good will of the people.

The answer to the suit also stated that she quarrelled with teachers in class rooms and even attempted to assault a teacher in front of the class.

NO HOPE FOR ROBERTS BABY.

Even If It Lives, Doctor Says, Its Legs Won't Grow.

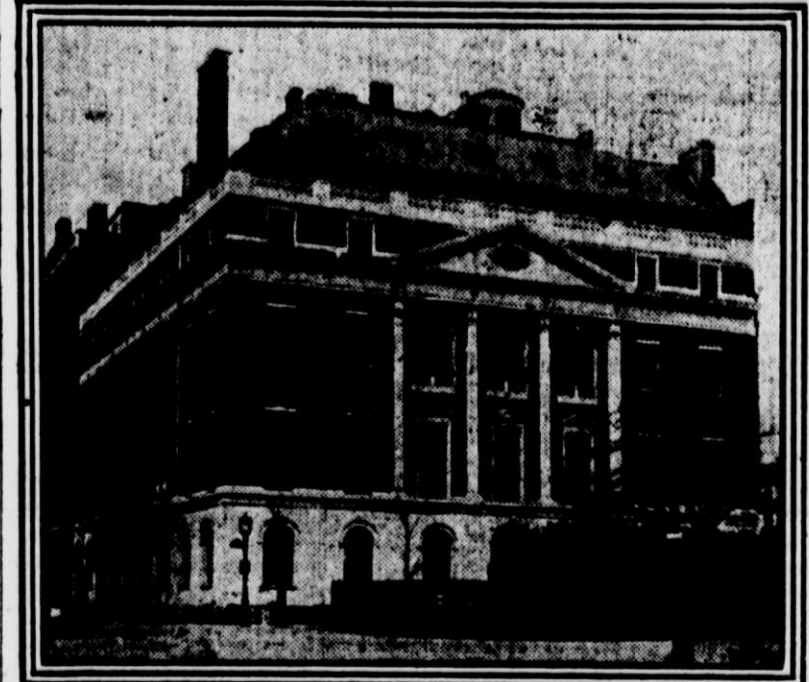

The condition of the deformed Roberts baby in the Babies Hospital remained unchanged yesterday. Dr. Reuel B. Kimball, who saw the baby on November 25, said he did not think the child would ever be of any use. Even if it lived to become strong enough to undergo an operation, he said, the legs would remain the same size as when it was born.

"The rule of the hospital is to save every baby brought in by the institution, but despite our utmost efforts I do not think this child can live," he said.

One reason why the baby is hearing up so well under its deformity, according to physicians, is because the nervous system is not so developed that it can feel pain. It will be several weeks before the baby becomes sensitive to pain.

Mrs. Roberts of 149 East Seventy-second street, the mother, is slowly recovering, but is beginning to ask for her baby. She does not know the condition and believes that it was taken to the hospital for a minor operation.

NEW COLONY CLUB IS A TRIUMPH IN DESIGNING

The new Colony Club, Sixty-second street and Park avenue.

The stately proportions of the Colony Club's new home at the northwest corner of Sixty-second street and Park avenue have imparted a distinction to that neighborhood, which is already filled with important structures. Delano & Aldrich are the architects of the new clubhouse, which from its nature demanded the solution of many problems which do not confront the architect in designing the ordinary men's clubhouse.

The president of the building committee was Miss Mary Parsons and associated with her among others were Mrs. Philip Lydie, Mrs. Frank Griswold, Miss Mary Callender, Mrs. Egeston Winthrop, Miss Anne Morgan and Miss Carol de Forest. It is expected that the new clubhouse will be open in the first week of January. The delay in the arrival of many parts of the decorations ordered in Europe has made it impossible to finish the building on time. Some of the crystal chandeliers ordered a long time ago in Germany were held up for a long time at Rotterdam and have only just arrived. Then the brass fixtures on the windows, made in France, were long in arriving.

The facade of the new building, which is made of brick and stone, is Colonial, or Georgian, in period. If one must insist that the architects consent to overstate the building as a masterpiece of work. The exterior, stately and dignified, is representative of the best traditions of the school of Colonial architecture. There are four stories in the front of the building and thirteen in the rear. The symmetry of the new clubhouse is not in the least disturbed by the presence of the practical features of its construction.

Main Entrance Fronts Avenue. The main entrance for members is on the Park avenue side of the building. Here on the first floor is the members' sitting room. This is a large square room in the style of the eighteenth century in England. The paneled room is paneled in green and gold and there is in the furniture and other decorations such strict adherence to the style of the period as in the architecture. The room is reached from the entrance and here are the offices and telephone booths. On the left side of the entrance is the guests' sitting room, a beautifully situated apartment with the broad windows overlooking the avenue and Sixty-second street. The room is paneled in green and gold and has a highly colored painted canvas panel taken from the walls of an old house in England.

The peculiarity of the group of rooms reached through the guests' entrance on East Sixty-second street is that they may be made entirely independent of the rest of the building. The guests' sitting room, a beautifully situated apartment with the broad windows overlooking the avenue and Sixty-second street. The room is paneled in green and gold and has a highly colored painted canvas panel taken from the walls of an old house in England.

While these rooms may be separated from the rest of the building, they are not intended for private entertainments. They are intended for private entertainments. They are intended for private entertainments.

Card Room Color Scheme Green. The chief feature of the second floor of the clubhouse is the main lounge, which stretches across the Park avenue front of the building. This room, which is paneled in green and gold, is a special elevator which runs directly from the entrance to the pool.

There are pantries on every floor and kitchens on several. The halls of the building are finished throughout in green and gold, with vaulted ceilings. The main staircase, which is wide, with iron railings, ascends to the fourth floor. For the other floors there are special staircases.

There are some novel features in the club, such as a small retiring room or rest room to which members may resort when they are seeking absolute quiet. There are butchers and fish shops and the most modern appliances for the kitchen.

The Kehillah of New York criticized the religious feature of the Gary plan of education yesterday at a special meeting. It is opposed the changing of the city of New York are crying out for any change in the educational system. Some one is trying to thrust this Gary plan down our throats. It is to be managed to study the plan. Most of the men are steel workers and where the plan is backed by the steel trust, but to put such a plan in operation in a great city like New York is another matter.

"This is a serious question and one which Jews should give great thought. This system would give religious feeling. It will make strife among children."

Miss Sadie American, representing the Council of Jewish Women, spoke against the plan.

Dr. Jacoby at Free Synagogue Urges Help for Parents of Healthy Children.

"Whenever a husband and wife give to the State a number of healthy children beyond the means of providing support the Commonwealth should help by direct aid or by insurance of life, health and labor. If it is said that this is socialism I agree. Before you have digested it you may call it altruism, humanitarianism or plain common sense."

This was said yesterday morning by Dr. Abraham Jacoby, who addressed the congregation at the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall in the absence of the Rev. Stephen S. Wise. Dr. Jacoby's subject was "The Child and the Nation." He said it is the duty of the physician to instruct his patients and friends on their duties toward themselves, their existing children and the community. He said that "Whereas the child is born with physical diseases, advanced tuberculosis, epilepsy, insanity, feeble-mindedness, should not be a parent. If he becomes a parent he is a danger to the present and of the future, and should be treated as such. Babies who prove dangerous through inheritance must not be born."

"To what extent a nation should require a certain number of children I am not prepared to say. We require no native soldiers in big numbers, but no ambitious American citizen should allow a defective child to be born. It is a disgrace to the nation to be formed, as now threatened, by aliens alone."

Dr. Jacoby said that the first born in a family is more likely to be deficient than the others. He said that bodies and minds are found in the second and third in order of birth, or the fourth and fifth if there be a large family.

WEDS, DESERTS AND ELOPES IN ONE DAY

Woman's Story of a Pique Wedding Told in Suit to Annul Marriage.

WIFE CALLED BIGAMIST

The story of a woman who quarrelled with her fiancé on the day set for their marriage, wedded another man through pique, and immediately regretted her act and went to live as the wife of the man she had intended to marry, is told in papers filed in the Supreme Court in a suit brought by Charles O. De Lisle of 640 Riverside Drive to annul his union with Mrs. Lillias De Lisle.

De Lisle alleges that when he married the defendant on January 17, 1910, she was already the wife of another man. The facts in the unusual case, which will present a puzzling situation to the court, are told in the story of Mrs. De Lisle. She stated that on April, 1903, she went through a form of marriage ceremony in Hamilton, Ont., with one Thomas Gilmore, "solely out of pique and following a quarrel with the present plaintiff, to whom she was to be married on the same day."

The defendant alleges that on her wedding day shortly after the marriage with Gilmore, De Lisle came to her, begged her pardon, and urged her to go with him, saying that there was no marriage because the ceremony had not been performed in a Roman Catholic church. Mrs. De Lisle says she then told Gilmore that she didn't love him and had only married him to spite her enemies. She asked Gilmore to release her, and says he tore up the marriage license on the spot and left her, promising to put her out of his life.

Mrs. De Lisle says that under the urging of the priest who conducted the ceremony with him, and they told their friends here that they had been married in Canada. In 1907, Mrs. De Lisle says, she learned that Thomas Gilmore had been killed in California. A child was born to her on July 1, 1909. They waited until January 17, 1910, when seven years had elapsed since the marriage ceremony, and then they were married in a Roman Catholic church here.

The defendant declares she lived happily for the most part until May 1 last, when her husband left her and said he intended to sue to annul their marriage, having conducted an investigation which convinced him that Gilmore was still alive. She says she knew he had many love affairs, but because of her love for him she refused to return to her and always forgave him for his conduct.

Mrs. De Lisle says the plaintiff became estranged from her in December, 1914, through the influence of a woman whom she met and "who told me she intended to take my husband away from me." The house which was owned by her, she says, was sold to her by a man who spent a great deal of money on this woman with the result that whereas he was generous to her before, he then refused to give her anything more. She says that her husband was induced to make the search for Gilmore by the other woman, who urged him to annul his present marriage. Gilmore has also remarried and is living happily with his wife and children, Mrs. De Lisle said.

HUSBAND FREED AFTER THREE HANDED FIGHT

Calls on Estranged Wife and Puts Her Guests on Injured List.

When Miss Catherine Griswold appeared in Jefferson Market court yesterday as complainant against her husband, Clyde A. Griswold, and was asked why she had fled from him, even though they had been estranged, she replied: "I fled from anything that is hungry."

Mrs. Griswold had her husband arrested Saturday, charging him with desertion. The arrest grew out of a difficulty Wednesday night in one of the bedrooms at 44 Washington Square South. She testified yesterday that she was a costume and designer. She added that she had been a secret service operative and an actress. She told the court that she and her husband had some words over some jewelry. A struggle ensued in which Mrs. Griswold said she was present when her husband was leaving the room. While she was trying to hold the door two friends, Arthur Moss, an advertiser, and Henry S. Damon, a civil engineer, both of 30 Washington Square East, came into the room.

When the two men tried to seize Griswold a fight followed in which Moss was hit over the head with a four foot wooden candle stick and Damon was bitten on the left arm. When Moss fell Griswold called for the police and his departure from the apartment was not further delayed.

Moss testified that when he and Damon were admitted to the apartment Wednesday night they knew nothing of the dissension between husband and wife and that they had been called by Mrs. Griswold. They thought that Griswold was hurting her and went to her assistance. Moss said he slipped on a rug in the scuffle and then something fell on his head.

He didn't know whether Griswold had struck him or the candlestick had been knocked against him.

Griswold, who is a free lance writer and lives at 11 East Fourteenth street, said he had never struck his wife and that he had merely brushed her aside from the door in an effort to leave the room. He said he became infuriated at the interference of the other men and that when his eyeglasses were broken he began to fight.

Mrs. Griswold said she had been married three years. She quarrelled with her husband from the first, the disputes beginning on their wedding day. She lived with her husband only three days, but they have been married six times since. Magistrate Corrigan discharged Griswold and advised that the ownership of the jewelry be settled in a civil court.

Magistrate Levy in speaking of the system said: "Do not think the people of the city of New York are crying out for any change in the educational system. Some one is trying to thrust this Gary plan down our throats. It is to be managed to study the plan. Most of the men are steel workers and where the plan is backed by the steel trust, but to put such a plan in operation in a great city like New York is another matter."

"This is a serious question and one which Jews should give great thought. This system would give religious feeling. It will make strife among children."

Miss Sadie American, representing the Council of Jewish Women, spoke against the plan.

'FRAMEUP' BY FOES, CHARGES OSBORNE

Warden Attacks District Attorney Weeks for Sing Sing Prison Inquiry.

CALLS ACTS SHAMEFUL

YONKERS, N. Y., Nov. 28.—The inquiry of the Westchester County Grand Jury into conditions at Sing Sing was characterized as a "frameup" by Warden Thomas Mott Osborne at a mass meeting in the Warburton Theatre, Yonkers, this afternoon. The meeting was called by a committee of citizens interested in Mr. Osborne's prison reforms.

In an attack on District Attorney Frederick B. Weeks the warden did not mince words. "Your chairman has no criticism against the District Attorney, but I have," said Mr. Osborne. "He is going over my head, taking out cases that belong within the prison walls, and contaminating your children with them. What good is he doing? Did he come up to see me? No. Did he visit me? No. Did he consult the members of the Welfare League? No. He consulted with miserable liars that were sent to him."

"I offered, in fact I almost demanded to be permitted to go before the Grand Jury. After hearing from the warden the Grand Jury would have understood my testimony. But the jurors have not been near the prison and they have not heard a word from the warden. But they have handed down twenty-three indictments."

The graduates of taking prisoners to White Plains to appear before the Grand Jury to face punishment for offenses they have committed in Sing Sing, the warden said, was shameful. Then, referring to the District Attorney's statement that the prisoners against whom indictments have been returned will not be tried until the end of their term, he said: "It is a disgrace."

"Send Weeks after him," said Judge W. H. Wadhams of the Court of General Sessions. He took a ding at his own suggestion, the suggestion to another. "It is evident," said the warden, "that certain officials at White Plains are not only without a sense of humor, but are without a sense of honor."

He expressed the hope that he would be indicted, remarking that, being of an artistic temperament, he hated to see a job half finished. He took a ding at his immediate predecessor, Thomas J. McCormick, without mentioning McCormick's name. He was enumerating the different classes of instruction, among them a class in automobile driving.

"But," he said, "some emphasis, the men in the automobile school practice within the prison grounds."

The house stenographers of the warden, who were in the room, were told to return to their quarters. The warden returned two years ago against a former warden.

Commissioner of Correction Katharine Davis and Judge Wadhams were the other speakers. William Forster was the chairman. There were fully 1,500 in the theatre.

UNION OF GIRL STENOGRAPHERS Plan to Organize City's 40,000 or More Typists.

The girl stenographers are going to organize. In a short time it is announced by the League for Business Opportunities for Women, which is backing the movement, the 40,000 or more female stenographers of the city will have a union of their own.

One of the things those interested in the new movement hope to establish is a minimum wage. It is believed that $8 a week will be the figure urged upon the employers of the city. The leaders of the stenographers realize, however, that many employers think that the average inexperienced typist is not worth such a salary. Because of this it is also planned to inaugurate various schools of stenography in an effort to increase the efficiency of graduates.

Another task will be to advise members of the union how to advance in their profession or if they are not interested to it to apply them of the fact that they can get into more suitable jobs.

Miss Ida Fingerhut, secretary of City Chamberlain Henry Bruere, is chairman of the union. Mrs. Bruere is president of the League for Business Opportunities for Women. The dues of members in a dollar. The union will have thousands of posters calling for members will be displayed throughout the city within a few days.
